HERBS

SWEET SCENTED, CULINARY AND MEDICINAL

Due to the rapidly increasing popularity of Herb Gardens in this Country at the present, and to meet the demand, we have raised a fine collection of the most attractive and useful varieties most suitable for cooking, flavoring, sweet smelling and ornamental uses.

There was not a lady in our grandmothers' time that did not have her Herb garden to pick from to make her dill-tea and diet drinks from plants of her own growing; and there is a prettiness about our Thyme, Sage, Mint and Marjoram, also Lavender, Rosemary and Rue, and the feathery Fennel and bright blue Borage. All of them are attractive bushy plants and a strip for the Herbery half-way between the flower and vegetable garden would be a very suitable and convenient location.

Herbs are of easy culture, and will grow in most any location as long as they receive normal care and sunshine.

Like being able to gather fresh vegetables and flowers, to gather fresh green Herbs is most delightful and complete. What could be nicer than to be able to pick fresh Mints and Borage for your Summer cool and Winter hot drinks, and fresh Thyme, Sage, Savory, Basil and Chives, etc., for sauces and seasonings and dressings. Then there is the lovely Lavender and Rosemary for old-fashioned bouquets and nosegays, also the Lavender for scenting your linens.

Then again when winter comes and the tender annuals have been frosted, what pleasure there would be to have fresh green Herbs growing in your window boxes in the kitchen. This is becoming very popular and the varieties we would suggest are Thyme, Sage, Mints, Basil, Lavender, Marjoram, Rosemary and Feverfew.

There are so many wonderful uses for these little plants that no one should be without them at any time in the dried or fresh form, and for your convenience we give you herewith a list of the best kinds to grow and an idea of their uses.
